In the Christian tradition of mission
In the Carmelite tradition of education and spirituality
In the American tradition of forging a nation of immigrants

As a community of faith we hear our calling to take these children from where they are to where they can be, The Crespi Man

“We at Crespi Carmelite represent a committed alumni and Catholic Community. We must go from where we are, at a $700 thousand financial aid fund, to where we need to be at $1.4 million, to bring more children of faith from their neighborhoods of deprivation to a nourishing campus life of developing the spirit, mind and body.”

Fr. Thomas Schrader, O. Carm., President

CRESPI CARMELITE is a reflection of our Catholicism, created by and for stakeholders, a Catholic community that is comfortable in the knowledge that traditional institutions are maintained. Maintained is not mere existence. We are not an elitist faith. Catholic education must exist within the reach of the many. For this very reason, tuition is about 20% below the cost to educate a student. And 24% of students receive further tuition assistance.

STAKEHOLDERS make $700 thousand available in the interest of educating deserving young men being raised by low income families. No one deserves a chance more than a child. In our judgment, too many young men in our community, most residing North of the 101 Freeway, deserve our consideration. Reverend Thomas Schrader, O. Carm., Crespi Carmelite President, prays for further support, recognizing that difficult economic events are times when our Catholic community is most concerned and driven to contribute more, not cut back.

AMERICAN CATHOLIC EDUCATION functions best when endowed, having predictable resources. Educating young men with Catholic and holistic values is the Crespi legacy; an opportunity for you to build a family legacy through endowment of Crespi Carmelite High School now! While endowments create a base of support, annual contributions from individuals and families sustain the school and the quality of education expected of a Carmelite sponsored education program.

IMMEDIATE PRIORITIES include:

Completing our 21st Century equipped biochemistry laboratory through contributions that match funding provided by supporting foundations.

Taking our scholarship fund from where it is to where it needs to be in the best interest of deserving youth.

If we all come together and gift within our means, then the school's goals and the aspirations of young men of faith are within reach. Catholic education continues to be a rewarding, tax-deductible gift.
